Compared with last year, there were more people participating in the exhibition, and everyone was very optimistic about the market this year. We were also very impressed by the large number of visitors to our booth and the great interest in our solutions. ### Taroko's Two-spindle Option Gives Greater Flexibility

Modular design is one of the biggest features of Taroko. In addition to the existing solution of 4 spindles as a module, the machine now has a two-spindle option to support our new product, Mini Lutan 1700. The option gives greater flexibility to fulfill customer's demands for small amounts of sizing. The high system configuration flexibility of Taroko is capable of meeting the needs of various applications.

Besides, Taroko is fully computer controlled which allows user to proceed the whole sizing process with ease. Its machine size is greatly reduced, and it can be operated with a minimum of one yarn bobbin, considerably saving space, manpower & energy costs.
